PROBE OF HALL-MILLS MURDER CASE MAY BE REOPENED

CLINIC CONCLUDED AND CLUB ELATED OVER ITS RESULTS

Visitors Will Depart For Louisville This Evening

43 TONSILS OUT IN DAY

Saturday Devoted To Check-up Of Cases Largely

Members of the Solomon clinic, who have been here for three days, under the auspices of the Albany-Decatur Kiwanis club and the Morgan County Medical Society, today were cleaning up their tasks, preparatory to departure for Louisville, Ky., their homes, Saturday evening.

Friday, the second day of the clinic, was an even greater success than the first and scores took advantage of the opportunity offered for examination and treatment of underprivileged children, whose parents were unable to pay for the necessary medical attention.

Saturday not so many new cases will go from Montgomery to the having endeavored to list as many patients as possible on the first two days, in order that on the final day more time might be devoted to "checking up" on the cases previously treated.

A new high total was recorded at the health department, where Dr. Higginbotham had charge of the tonsil operations. He removed the tonsils from 32 patients during the day, practically all of them children.

This morning an unusual sight was that of a mother and a young child, both of whom underwent operations for removal of their tonsils.

At the Benevolent hospital, where major cases were treated, splendid work was being done by Dr. Miller, who has operated on a number of underprivileged children of this section. Dr. Solomon, head of the clinic, and in personal charge of examination, continued during the day to diagnose the physical defects of scores of children, some of whom were sent to the health office, others to the hospital, and the rest referred to their family physicians.

Members of the Kiwanis club have been busy today acknowledging the congratulations which have been pouring in from people of all walks of life.

SPEAKE WILL GO TO MOBILE SOON

Will Aid In Executing Local Company's Dock Contract

Neil M. Speake, of the Decatur Cornice and Roofing company, will leave soon for Mobile, where he will have personal charge of the local company's share in building of the warehouses for the Alabama Docks Commission in the gulf city.

The Decatur Cornice and Roofing company recently began work, in a small way, on its part of the contract and, as the materials made here are needed, they will be rushed to the Alabama port. The material bought of the local company is to be sent as needed, one contractor being ahead of the local company in the construction program.

The contract placed here totalled something over $100,000.

GODBEY SPEAKS IN LAWRENCE COUNTY

Attorney Is Heard In Interest Of Patterson

Hon. E. W. Godbey, local attorney, today addressed a great crowd of North Alabamians gathered at Hatton in the interests of Hon. A. G. Patterson, gubernatorial candidate from Morgan County. An all day picnic at Hatton brought a crowd estimated in the thousands.

Beginning the scheduled Morgan County drive for the home candidate, Mr. Godbey delivered his address, beginning at 11 o'clock. He entered the phases of the platform promises made by the local man.

A number of Moulton citizens, Patterson backers, joined with the local contingent on the journey to Hatton, constituting a strong force now at work to place a stronger Patterson majority in Lawrence county. People from all over North Alabama were present at the barbecue.

Compress Scene of Unusual Fire

The compress, operated here by the Union Compress company, was the scene of an unusual blaze, which did no damage, early Saturday morning.

The company is erecting a number of new warehouses which are being given a roofing of a combination material, necessitating heating before being applied. About 1:45 o'clock Saturday morning some of the liquid which had drained onto the ground from the heating machine, caught fire. The material gave forth immense volumes of smoke. The Albany department answered the alarm and extinguished the blaze.

Doty Expected To Be Paroled

(Associated Press)
PARIS, July 17.—It was indicated at the foreign office today, though not officially, that Bennett J. Doty, American member of the Foreign Legion in Syria, would be pardoned long before the expiration of the eight year sentence pronounced against him by a court-martial at Damascus yesterday.

Doty, whose home is in Memphis, Tenn., was found guilty of "abandoning his post before armed rebels," the "rebels" being the Druse tribesmen, whom the French are seeking to subdue in Syria.

Groves Not Likely To Enter Morgan

Bibb Graves, of Montgomery, candidate for governor, who recently has spent several days in Jackson, Madison and other North Alabama counties, will not deliver any addresses in Morgan County, friends of the Montgomery candidate declared here today.

They declared Mr. Graves did not plan to carry his campaign personally into the home counties of other candidates out of respect to them and explained that he would not deliver addresses in Morgan inasmuch as it is the home county of A. G. Patterson, also a candidate for the democratic gubernatorial nomination.

CANTON, Ohio, July 17.—James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and head of the News League of Ohio, today posted a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction "of those responsible" for the murder of Don R. Mellett and the Stark county commissioners posted a similar reward of $2,000 and the Cleveland News $1,000. Rewards offered now total $20,450.

Private funeral services for the editor crusader who was shot shortly after midnight yesterday morning, it is believed because of his frequent attacks on the vice lords of Canton, will be held at noon tomorrow.

At their conclusion, his body will be sent to Indianapolis where it is awaited by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Mellett and his brother John, secretary of the Indianapolis Public Utility Association and author and former newspaper man.

Lowell Mellett, another brother, arrived during the night from Washington-News and the Scripps-Howard league of newspapers. The publisher's widow, after her first shock, has bravely withstood the ordeal. It is Mellett's brother Lloyd, associated with him on the Canton News who appears most heavily bent under the strain. He has told his close acquaintances that he cannot drive from his mind a feeling that some of the articles he wrote may have caused members of Canton's underworld to slay his brother.

Governor Donahey's personal investigator, C. H. Sisson, was ordered from Columbus yesterday to aid in the investigation. He is to keep the governor's office informed of progress in the case.

In his relentless fight against crime in Canton for which he gave his life, Mellett conferred with the governor here for more than an hour July 7.

As head of the city's forces the chief of police, S. L. Lengel has pending in the Stark county courts, a libel suit against the Canton News and Don R. Mellett. The suit was brought because of articles printed when Lengel was before the civic service commission, charged with laxity in law enforcement. Lengel was later reinstated. The chief declared all his men are "on their toes to bring in the murderers."

City council in special session last night learned that it could make no definite appropriation for furthering the investigation, but voted to finance the extraordinary activities which may be required in the search.

Police yesterday traced to Johnston, Pa., an automobile which came under suspicion. Neighbors of the Mellett's said that they saw an automobile with a Pennsylvania license, hovering in the neighborhood. These reports led to the theory that hirelings from outside of Canton committed the crime at the behest of the rulers of the city's underworld. A complete alibi was exhibited for the Johnston car, police learned.

Bond Money Is Believed Coming

Proceeds of the $75,000 school bond issue, sold recently by the city of Albany to Caldwell and company, will arrive here soon it was believed today at the Albany city hall. A letter has been received indicating that approval has been given the issue by the bond attorneys.

PETITION GRANTED

The petition of The Daily to extend the grating in front of its building, on the Moulton street side, two feet into the sidewalk, in order to provide a place for bringing paper into the building was granted last night by the Albany city council. The council provided, however that heavy iron doors be used to cover the opening in the sidewalk when paper was not being unloaded.

FIRST CARLOAD MELONS ARRIVE

Alabama Product Is Place On Local Market Today

The first carload of Alabama grown melons arrived on the local markets today. The melons were shipped from the farm of W. B. McCulloch, local man, from his Montgomery county farm. The farm is located within 20 miles of the state capital. Fifty to sixty acres were planted in watermelons.

Mr. McCulloch stated today that a similar weather condition has been met in Montgomery county that has been complained of here. The planter declared that too much rain has cut the value of the melon crop to a great extent. Morgan farmers have been complaining loudly of the rainfall and some have declared that the first melon crop has been practically a loss.

"Some of the best farmers in Morgan county," said Mr. McCulloch, "have been unfortunate this year with their crop of melon. The yield is small."

Traffic Code Is To Be Revised

Some revision of traffic regulations in the City of Albany will be made by the council, to provide authority for enforcement of the new stop and slow signals, placed at street intersections.

The city attorney and street committee members were instructed by the council Friday evening to prepare the necessary ordinances and have them ready for presentation probably at the next meeting of the council.

Petition Filed To Open Up Avenue

The petition to open 18th avenue east, was referred to the street committee by the council Friday evening. The petition was taken as another step in the drive to develop the entire eastern section of the city of Albany.

EAST ALBANY MAY BE SCENE OF NEXT WORK ON STREETS

Paving Program Is Talked By City Council

EASTERN PART BE DEVELOPED

The Ordinances May Be Ready Within Next 3 Weeks

Possibility that East Albany soon may be a section of "well paved streets" loomed today, as a result of informal discussions of the matter by members of the Albany city council, in regular session Friday evening.

Informal proposals have been made to pave Tower avenue, Columbus Circle, Olive, Wadsworth, Sherman and Jackson streets.

It is not known definitely how long will be required to prepare the ordinances and take the other legal steps necessary to get the paving underway, but belief was expressed this could be accomplished within a few weeks. Work, however, might not get started before next spring.

Included in the proposed paving are many of the prettiest driveways in the city. At the time that New Decatur, now Albany, was laid out by city planners, a park section was provided through the heart of the city. The proposed street developments are just east of the east terminus of the park area.

Opinion was expressed that the paving would do much to develop the entire eastern end of the city.

BLOCK OF SECOND AVENUE TO BE CLOSED FOR "PARTY"

Albany Council Lends Cooperation To The Daily's Plan For Election Night Flash Of The Returns

The Albany city council last night gave its co-operation to The Daily in the effort to make the "election party" here on the evening of August 10 the greatest in the history of this community.

The council last night granted the petition of The Daily to block traffic off of Second Avenue, between Moulton street and Holly street from six o'clock until such time, in the course of the night, the crowd disperses sufficiently to make traffic on the block safe.

The council recognized the reasonableness of the petition of The Daily that the immense crowds which will gather in front of the newspaper office to view the election returns, flashed on the Schimmel and Hunter building, just across the street, would make the passage of traffic through the crowds perilous, and promptly granted the request to close the block for that occasion.

The hour of six o'clock was fixed as the time for blocking the street, because of the fact that the stores close at that hour, and it was believed that it would be easier to block the street before the election bulletins began to arrive, rather than to attempt to clear the street after the "party" got underway.

Traffic will be routed via Moulton street and Holly street, instead of directly through the street. The routing will be a little inconvenient to persons desiring to pass through the closed block, but it was believed much safer to bar traffic from going through the crowds. The Daily and the council were acting on the theory that an "ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Preparations for complete coverage of the election were still going forward today. The Daily will collect, in the office, the returns from Morgan, Limestone and Cullman. These returns will be flashed on the screen and will be forwarded to the Associated Press' Birmingham office, from whence a leased telegraph wire will broadcast the figures to the other members of the organization.

The Daily will receive over its leased wire the complete figures, as rapidly as they are tabulated, from every county in the state. The totals from individual boxes will be given in many instances.

The Associated Press has made probably the most elaborate arrangements ever devised for collecting news of the vote. Shortly after six o'clock the first boxes will be reported, and from that time on until the winners in all of the major races are known, flashes will tell of the progress of the count.

The Daily will publish no election extras. The returns will be flashed on the screen and the news will be absolutely free to all who are interested. Telephone calls will be answered cheerfully as rapidly as they are received and additional telephone facilities will be provided to make telephoning easier for the subscribers.

The Daily is going to considerable expense to provide for the people of this section a quick and authentic report on the election and it extends a cordial invitation to everyone to take full advantage of the service offered.

Murder of Minister and Choir Singer Never Solved.

(Associated Press)
TRENTON, N. J., July 17.—A report on recent developments in the Hall-Mills murder mystery has been ordered by Governor Moore, it was announced today.

Attorney General Katzenbach and Prosecutor Toolan, of Middlesex county, where the slain pastor and choir singer lived, were ordered to make the report next week.

Interest in the case was revived by statements made in an affidavit and petition filed in connection with a suit for annulment of marriage between Arthur S. Riehl and Mrs. Louise Riehl, Mrs. Riehl, who was a former parlor maid in the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall's rectory, was alleged to have told her husband Mrs. Hall, her brother, Willie Stevens and a chauffeur went to a deserted farmhouse on the night of the murder.

The bodies of Mr. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills were found under an apple tree near a deserted farmhouse.

If Katzenbach and Toolan agree, the statements warrant Governor Moore is prepared to order a complete investigation. While Toolan has taken charge of the case in Middlesex county, state police are making a secret investigation in Somerset county, where the bodies were found.

Gossip of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population

International News Service Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW—Like the aristocrats of old Russia, the communists of new Russia are proudly conscious of their rank. The old aristocrats judged their titles by age in centuries, and the communists judge theirs by age in years, but the genuine "old Bolshevik" is no less loaded with honors in the Soviet State than was a prince of the blood of Russia in the regime of the Czar.

Russian communist society is divided into three groups: those who joined the party before the revolution, those who joined during the revolution, and those who joined after it. They grade from the top downward in the order named. The first group is the only one entitled to the name of "Old Bolsheviks." They are few, but vastly important. Most of them entered the party during the abortive revolution of 1905. Among them is the mutual confidence born of a quarter century's struggle together against the Czar's police.

These true "blue bloods" of Communist society, or "red bloods" as they would prefer to be called, know each other intimately. Between them the formal "Comrade" is dropped, and it is "Joe" or "Leo" or "Nick," in conversation. Occupying the highest places in the party and in the government, they are jealous of the honor of their rank.

Few have proved unworthy of their responsibilities. Whatever criticism may be brought against individual communists for their mode of living it is notorious that the offenders are almost always careerists who had entered the party since the revolution. Embellishments and various forms of speculation on the part of this class of communists are painfully frequent, but the old Bolsheviks have kept their reputation for the most part immaculate.

Hence the dismay felt among the party chiefs when the rumor was confirmed that Comrade Pyotr Barin, a member of the party since 1905, had been caught with an unexplained deficit of $12,000 on the ledgers of the factory of which he was the manager.

Barin had a notable record as a communist. During the revolution of 1905 he led a group of the revolting workmen in Rostov on the Don. When the war broke out he entered the army, was rapidly promoted and attained the rank of lieutenant-colonel under the Czar. But all the time he maintained his connection with the central committee of the Bolshevik party and was of inestimable help to them by reason of his access to army plans.

He was one of the first to tear off his epaulets and fight Kerensky on the side of the Bolsheviks. After a notable career as a Red Army officer he was made head of a large factory, and so efficiently managed it that it showed a profit of $100,000 at the end of the first year.

Barin broke down and cried when faced by an investigating committee with the auditor's report in its hands. In true Russian manner he confessed everything and begged not for mercy, but for immediate punishment.

"Take me and shoot me," he cried. "I'm a miserable wretch. I gambled the money away."

For anyone else this plea would have been quite unnecessary, since the Soviet courts are now sentencing to death all highly placed officials who betray their trust. Barin, however, failed to achieve his desire. The court, declaring this revolutionary record too weighty to be ignored, sentenced him to ten years imprisonment.

Moulton News

MOULTON, Ala., July 17—Special—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the large barn belonging to W. R. Jackson, judge of probate, about seven o'clock this morning; the barn was built by the elder Judge Kumpse several years ago when he erected his handsome residence about a block from the public square; the property was recently bought by Judge Jackson. Besides the loss of the barn, the biggest loss was that of his car which could not be taken from the barn after the fire was discovered. It was only with great difficulty that the dozens of men called for their breakfast and from work were able to save the homes of both Judge Jackson and A. V. Walker, county tax collector, whose home is just in front, nearly a small garden between, the site of the barn. Had it not been for the large trees surrounding the Jackson house and one noble male next to the Walker house, even to heroic efforts of the bucket brigade would hardly have been able to save the houses.

AN APPEAL TO ALABAMA VOTE BY TWO PROMINENT W. C. T. U. WOMEN

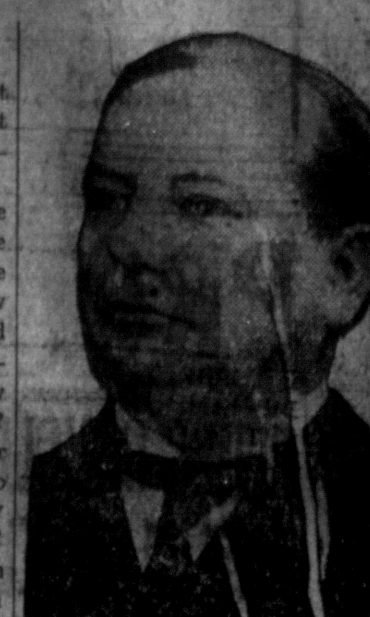

To Our Thoughtful and Faithful W. C. T. U. Women:
The time for helping in the fight to keep the 18th Amendment as it stands in the constitution is here in the election of U. S. Senator.

Some try to make us believe there will be no effort to change this law. If we have eyes to see or read, and ears to hear, we know that this is not true. Some would have us believe that any man running would fight to keep this law as it stands. But, is that true? Would they do it? What are their former records? What did they do to get that law, what have they done since to keep it inviolate? What would they do in Washington if there came a choice between keeping the 18th Amendment or procuring a favorable vote on some pet political measure of their own? What would they do to prevent insertion of some catch word amendment which would push in the innocent looking little wedge, sharp and thin at the beginning but broad and wide at the end?

Do we want to try some new unproved man in this crucial time, some man with untried promises of what he will do, or do we need some man whom we have already tried and who has stood the test, has had the experience and has shown that when our interests for Constitutional Prohibition are endangered, all other considerations vanish?

A man who stands upright and unafraid and who will fight as he has before, for the principles we hold so dear?

We know absolutely that effort is being made to bring on light wines and beer. We as thoughtful conscientious members of the W. C. T. U. believe Mr. L. B. Musgrave the right man to lead our fight, the man who has proven to us in the past his steadfast devotion to cause and the cause of education and who was one of the few standing men who worked tirelessly to secure the passage of 18th Amendment.

We do not believe it necessary to encourage our members to vote for Mr. Musgrave, but we want them to get their friends allied organizations to do like we believe that we will fight our cause and the other important causes of our State and Nation enthusiastically, working in way for the election of Mr. Musgrave. We believe if we do this, we will one day regret in this time of peril we forgo most faithful friend.

Loyally yours,
MRS. F. M. JACKSON,
MRS. CHAPPELL COLE

TODAY 12 Years Ago

From The Daily of
July 17, 1914

Ben McEntire is in New Orleans for a few days today.

Company E is preparing to leave for encampment.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Garnett have moved into their new cottage on Vine street.

Mrs. Ben Martin and children are in Vine-mont for the summer.

Misses Mabel Pride, of Pride's Station and Ruth Greer, of Marion, are the house guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Greer.

"Ma" Ferguson is not troubled by her conscience, at least. She slept through a train wreck.

If they continue to tell stories about the Los Angeles woman evangelist, who disappeared, she may regret yet that she ever returned.

Along about this time of the campaign, tired candidates begin to wonder if the game is worth the candle.

In Smyrna 13 conspirators against the government were hanged. One was hanged twice. That is real law enforcement.

In Calcutta four persons were killed in a religious riot, between Mohammedans and Hindus. Isn't it peculiar that passion seems to never become so bitter as when aroused by religious fervor?

The Tall Man's Association has been organized to seek longer berths in pullmans and beds in hotel rooms. Thus do we carry the spirit of comfort into everyday life in America. Where else would such an idea ever be conceived?

A reader calls attention to an error in The Daily's editorial column and asks if it was intentional or otherwise. In a reference to Governor Brandon, a typographical error gave him the title of "Pain Bill." We hasten to assure the reader the error was not intentional.

THE LAST MINUTE DRIVE

With only a few short weeks left Morgan county friends of Honorable A. G. Patterson are driving like mad in an effort to roll up a large Patterson majority in all North Alabama counties. These men believe in their candidate, believe that he will stand back of the promises he has made for a sane and good government, once he is seated in the executive chair.

No matter for what candidate or in what race men might be, when they are fighting for a candidate they are fighting for A. G. Patterson, with only the principles of belief, fellowship, county pride, and good will as the motive there is much akin to admiration born within the thoughts of others. These Morgan county forces of Patterson are not going to let up in their sustained fight until the battle is won on August 10. They have asked only that Mr. Patterson request and they have served in any capacity they believed beneficial to his candidacy. It looks like Morgan county is going to have its first governor, it has been a long wait, but it is worth it when the county gets a man of Mr. Patterson's calibre in the executive chair. Cast your ballot on August 10, cast your ballot for Andrew G. Patterson, the man who has records to prove that he will do as he says he will do. Vote for Morgan's Own.

PAY FOR THEIR TIME IN PRISON WILL BE SOUGHT BY MARSHALL COUNTY NEGROES

Cleo Staten and John Murchison, two Marshall county negroes, who were released recently from state's prison, after having served several years on a charge of slaying John Franklin McClendon, for whose death Mrs. Myrtle McClendon King now is held under bond, will ask the Alabama legislature to recompense them for their period of service. The legislature may be able to effect a satisfactory adjustment with the negroes, if it is ultimately proved that they are innocent, but what can the legislators do for the unfortunate blacks, convicted of the same offense, who lost their lives in prison?

Should later developments show conclusively that the negroes were not guilty of the murder of Mr. McClendon, the Marshall county case would become one of the most pitiful in Alabama criminal annals. The unfortunate blacks were declared guilty at their trial and sentenced to long terms in the penitentiary. Two of the quartette are said to have been killed in mine mishaps, while serving a sentence for a crime they did not commit. The other two survived the ordeals of prison life and have been released. The legislature, if the facts be true, should render financial relief to the two negroes released and to the families of those who were victims of the convict system. The recompense the legislature will be able to offer will not repay the unfortunates for their sufferings, but it will be the least the state can do.

DENY THAT McADOO WILL DELIVER CAMPAIGN TALKS IN STATE FOR MUSGROVE

Rumors, which had gained circulation all over the state to the effect that William G. McAdoo might come into Alabama on a speaking campaign in behalf of his friend, L. B. Musgrove, senatorial candidate, lately have been denied.

The Daily has high regard for both Mr. Musgrove and Mr. McAdoo, but it fails to see how Mr. Musgrove's campaign could be aided by addresses from a citizen from outside the state, even should the speaker be a man of the reputation and high standing of Mr. McAdoo.

In a previous senatorial campaign in this state, a nationally known orator made several addresses in Alabama in behalf of one of the candidates, incidentally the candidate who later lost the election. These addresses were heard by tremendous crowds, but The Daily hazards the guess that few, if any, votes were changed by them.

Alabamians are rather proud of their inherent right to make up their minds without outside advice and purely from a political standpoint, many believe that the Musgrove forces have made the right decision, if they have decided against the McAdoo speeches.

If Mr. McAdoo should come to this state, he would be accorded the same hospitable reception he deserves as an outstanding American citizen, but it is extremely doubtful that he could have much influence in lining up votes for Mr. Musgrove, or for any other candidate for that matter.

SONG WRITERS MAKE US WONDER WHERE AMERICA IS DRIFTING IN MUSIC

Keen students of music will object to current "jazz" being dignified by designation as "music," yet "jazz" largely is the music of the masses in America and, as such, should receive consideration from artists and the laymen alike.

Some of the more recent efforts of popular song writers forces one to wonder where America is drifting. When things get so bad that titles of a popular air are not fit to be printed in a family newspaper, something is radically wrong. According to current gossip, one rather notorious song, lately enjoying somewhat of a fad, was recalled by one maker of phonograph records. That would indicate a healthy condition in the record industry, were it not for the fact one wonders why record makers produced the article in the first place. Why should business interests believe that the public would approve and purchase such rot?

One notable exception in the song world to the large number of writers who have thrown themselves headlong into vulgarity and slime, is Irvin Berlin. His recent successes have been notable by their freedom from the moral laxities which so many writers apparently depend upon to attract public attention. Why other writers do not learn from his experiences that there is a market for clean "jazz" is a mystery. The only possible solution The Daily sees is that having no real talent, they pin their hopes on filth, a condition found in other industries as well as in the song world.

The Daily does not believe that the decent, home-loving people of America want to be prurish about their music, but The Daily does believe that there is a limit, past which this great section of our people do not want the song writers to go. There must be a market for the vulgar selections now being ground out by alleged musicians and the quickest way to check the flow is to destroy the market.

Censorship will not accomplish results as quickly as will decision by the better people of America not to buy, nor countenance, just anything the song writers want to hoist on the public.

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS for the Sabbath and Other Days

(By J. E. Blair)

Twenty-five years ago and over, in the Avondale Mill village in Birmingham lived a man named, say, Foeman. He was of religious deportment and prayed in public at the little church near the cotton mill. He was zealous, and once he prayed earnestly at the bedside of his father. But that man got to be a "regular devil." Well, the only evidence the writer has against his religious conception is that on one occasion Mr. Foeman said he prayed "to father to become a Christian." Now earthly fathers are not the ones to pray to. Pray to God who heareth in secret and He will reward thee openly, we are told in Holy writings. Foeman lost the central truth of Christianity, namely that God answers prayers—not people—and most of all people cannot answer their own prayers. And an important deduction from the above truth, IS God cannot be left out of a life with safety. There are sure to come times when so much trouble will arise, that God Himself alone is the only person who can settle it! Take a child, when he gets hurt real badly, he runs for his parents. The child's mother is the only one who can kiss away the pain. Now with all who care to side otherwise "to the contrary notwithstanding," we are nothing more than "old children." There is "no such thing" as a person of "mature judgment" enough of this earth to settle difficulties by praying to earthly parents or to any other power, except God Himself. Foeman, though he meant well, was disconnected from God, therefore when the winds of adversity blew and the deep waters of real trouble covered him, he got to be a "regular devil" instead of a potential saint! Is there any use to retell the parables to get the truth hinted at into his mind and understanding? Don't the reader SEE enough of the failure of ungodliness, to know God must help us or we perish? Do you know anybody that seems destined to "live right" throughout life, who is not seeking God as his partner? Besides, right living, would it not be hell itself without God throughout eternity?

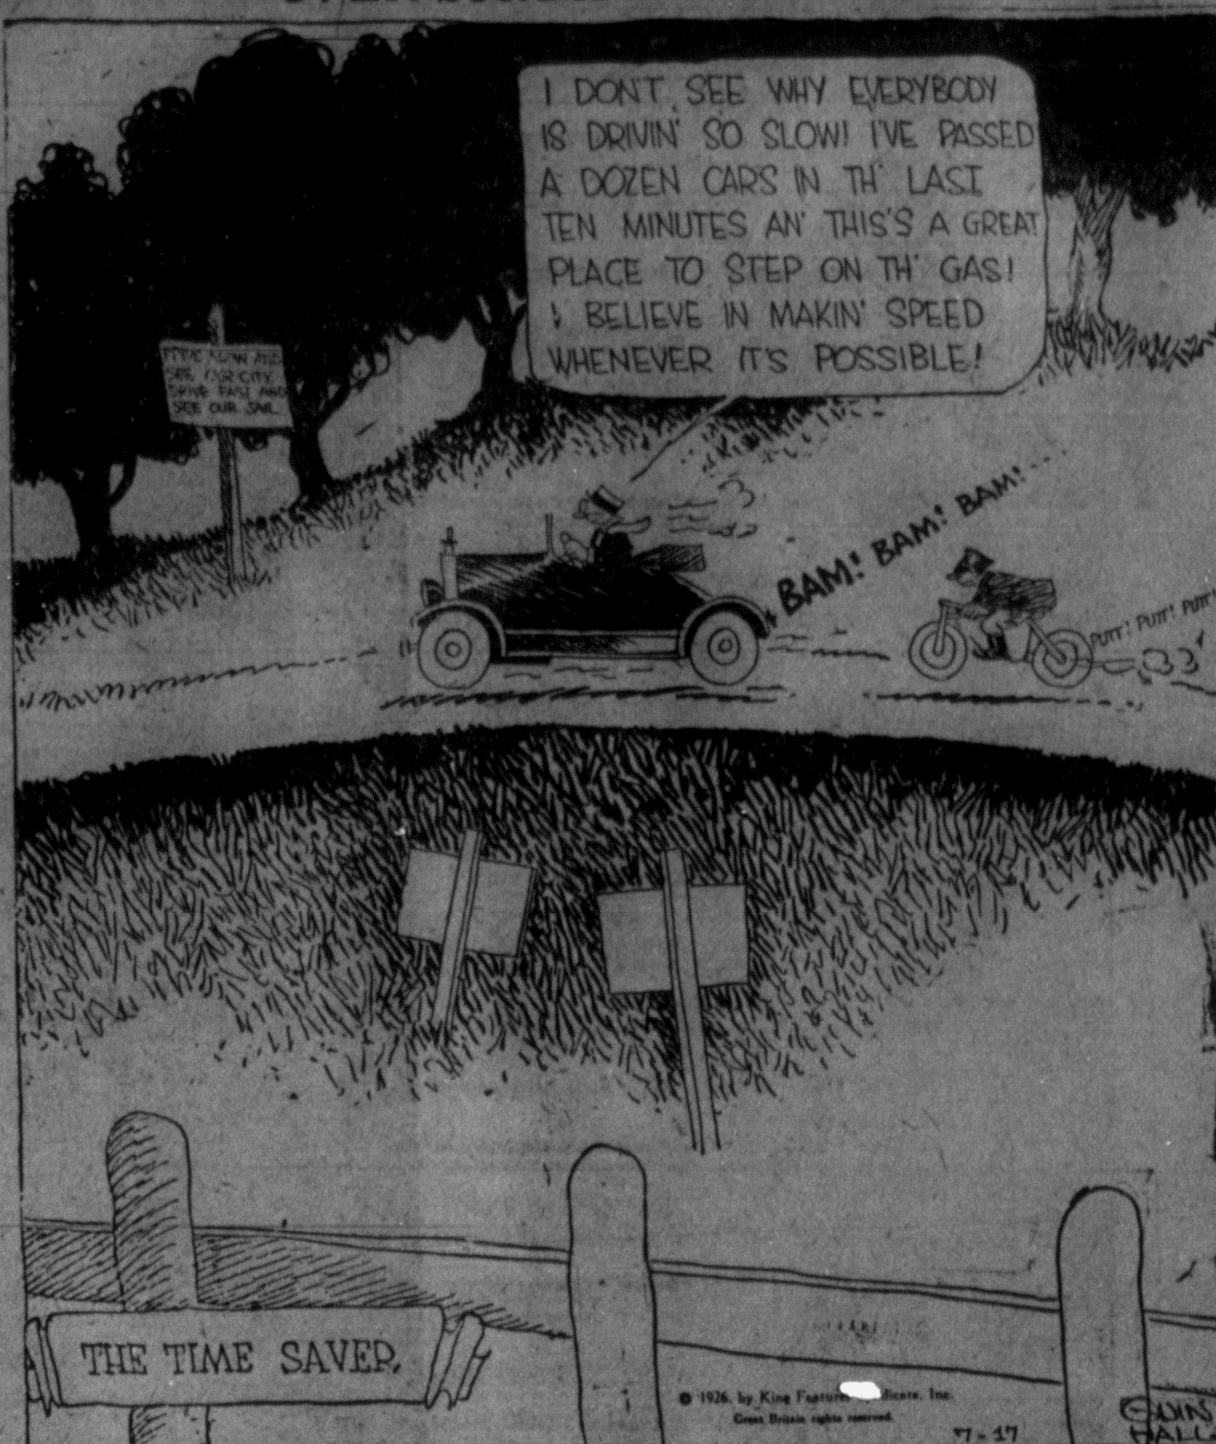

As long as people remain just animals—but they can't do that—there may seem to be no immediate need of God. Young hearts that are beating high with self-born ambitions do not feel the need of prayer to God—they do not want God. But the time will come when some great "hurt" comes into life—and are not "hurts" coming every day—when involuntarily we will pray to God? Why wait until with shame you most seek God? Why not seek Him while He is near and call upon Him while you are sure to be heard?

MONOTONY IN WORK LOWERS VITALITY

The Question of Diversification in Industry Needs to be Studied Not Only from Human but also from Efficiency Standpoint.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

NOT long ago I heard a candidate for office making a political speech. It really was a remarkable speech. He was referring to the conditions of labor and the tremendous strides made in the industrial world in the protection of labor.

The candidate paid his respects to employers and employees in their efforts to co-operate for the community good. Then he spoke as follows:

"But the change and the growth have been so rapid that the adjustment to the new conditions has been comparatively backward. The driving pace of massed production has necessarily shortened the laborer's working hours. We are facing either one of two further changes, namely, either a further reduction in the working hours or a diversification in the laborer's work. It has been found that the human machine cannot work at top speed at one job without change day in and day out except at the risk of physical or mental breakdown, or both."

There can be no doubt that some of the industrial demands are such that many employees are forced to do over and over again the most monotonous jobs in the world.

I remember writing an article two or three years ago about "Nuts & Co." This man had just one thing to do. He screwed on the forty-eighth nut in assembling the automobiles in the factory where he was employed.

From early morning until late at night his job was to apply nut 48.

I don't need to tell you that such monotony in industry is degrading. It destroys initiative. It is disorganizing in every sense.

Far be it from me to interfere with the efficiency, or the alleged efficiency, of any industry. I am convinced, however, that this candidate for high office stated a very true thing when he said that diversification in the laborer's work is essential to further progress in industry.

You cannot handle the human machine as you do a mechanical device. It has a soul and a mind. The human machine cannot conform to the operations which can be made for an indefinite period by a machine of steel and wood.

Every employer of labor can well afford to study the question of diversification. There will be no loss of effectiveness by the installation of a plan of diversifying duties. On the contrary, "change of work is play," and the laborer who has variety in his work is sure to accomplish more in the long run than the one who does the same thing through every minute of every day.

Answers to Health Queries

Patsy. Q.—What causes excessive perspiration under the arms?

A.—This condition is usually due to a disorder of the sympathetic nervous condition. Hot water compresses applied under the arms for half an hour are sometimes beneficial.

A.—Brushing the tongue is not injurious. This is the proper way to keep it clean. Coated tongue is often due to constipation.

TODAY

(By ARTHUR BRISBANE)

the ancient method, when each of the fourteen would have led a selfish, self-indulgent life and then separately at the last minute would have given money as a bribe to Providence in the hope of escaping hell, and gaining paradise. The best way to achieve that result is to give to other men.

The Lord does not need money.

JOHN J. HANLON of Chicago, tells the National government he intends to get married and wants "any literature on the government's ideals about marriage, particularly the size of the family the government wants one to have."

The ideal family is as many children as the mother wants, and can take care of and every other should be allowed to decide for herself how many.

Some small families have done wonders. Alexander the Great had no brothers or sisters, Cæsar, on the other hand, was the nineteenth child; Napoleon was one of many.

The size of the family is the mother's business, not the government's business.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., wise man, will not allow his children to have their pictures in newspapers. He doesn't want them to "feel important before they have done anything worth while." He doesn't even want his children to know that they are very rich, which also is wise.

One of Mr. Rockefeller's children, asked to contribute $50 to some worthy cause, said, quite sincerely:

"They must think we are Vanderbilts."

That innocent child doesn't know that her father and grandfather could buy the whole Vanderbilt family every little while and not know the difference.

SOMETIMES Uncle Sam makes money. The big sugar men of the United States formed a "sugar equalization board" to control prices in the war. The government put in $5,000,000 and yesterday received from that board which ceases to exist a check for $11,000,000, making a total of $11,000,000 profit for the government on its investment of $5,000,000.

LET there be light and power is the motto of New York City. That one American community uses five billion kilowatt hours of electricity every year, more than the total amount developed by all the generating plants in Greece, Denmark, Latvia, Yugoslavia, Poland, Hungary, Norway, Roumania, Turkey, Switzerland, Sweden and the Netherlands. Those twelve countries have 109,000,000 population, nearly twenty times the population of New York City, almost the population of the United States.

The people's use of electricity power and telephones, is the measure of its prosperity and enterprise, if not actually a measure of civilization.

H. G. FOKKER, brilliant flying man from Holland, manufacturing planes here, has insured his life for $2,000,000 and pays high premiums because of the risk. This particular flyer is worth many times $2,000,000. He built the machine in which Commander Byrd, fine young American naval officer, flew over the North Pole, with other financial help of Vincent Astor, Edsel Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Mr. Fokker ought to be working for the United States government and it ought to insure his life for $20,000,000—if money made any difference.

GERMANY builds first-aid airplanes to take the injured swiftly to the nearest hospital. Patients will be carried to and from the airplane in padded hammocks. This country gave Europe, the flying machine, Europe is teaching us to use it.

Strangers

Oh, they're so frightened! They didn't mean to swim so far, and they are glad to have found the rock on which to take the much needed rest. But they didn't think for a minute that they'd see real, honest-to-goodness mermaids. And there they are! And how astonished they all are.
The mere maids are frightened to death at the sight of the mermaids, and the mermaids are frankly curious about the mere maids. The maids of the land and the maids of the sea—both alike, yet so different. Strangers in every sense of the word, with not a thing in common except their love of Father Neptune's domain, and their frankly feminine curiosity. Isn't it a pity they must be strangers, for each could teach the other so much!

Dr. W. E. Sears, pastor of the local Christian Church, has tendered his resignation, to take effect within the course of the next few days. Dr. Sears came to Athens about a year ago, and his work has been highly satisfactory to his members. The reason for his resignation is thought to be ill health, as he suffered an unusually severe attack of flu recently which necessarily hampered the progress of his work.

Delaney Annexes Light-Heavy Title On Points From Paul Berlenbach

is the champ of light-heavyweights today after having won a 15-round decision from Paul Berlenbach at Ebbets Field Friday night. An immense crowd jammed the baseball park. The champion weighed 174, the challenger 166.

Delaney entered the ring first, followed by Paul half a minute later. Berlenbach stepped to the microphone for a few words and Referee Jim Crowley called the fighters to the center of the ring. Berlenbach landed the first blow, sending Delaney back on his heels with a left to the head. The bell prevented a follow.

Delaney came out for the second round and landed a slow left to the head. The challenger ripped his left to the body and Paul covered up. Delaney landed two light blows and then using his right for the first time during the bout, almost floored Paul with a driving punch to the head. The bell prevented a follow.

Both were cautious to begin the third. Delaney turned Paul around with a right to the chin. Paul stung Delaney with a left to the face and blood flowed from the challenger's lips. A vicious right uppercut caught Paul's head and sent it back with a jerk to end the round.

The challenger staggered the champ with a left to the head to begin the fourth. Delaney tossed away all caution and punched for Berlenbach's head and body, but the champion drove him into a clinch. Delaney came out of it, landing a resounding smack flush on the champ's chin. They exchanged light blows at the bell.

The champ slipped to one knee at the beginning of the round but was up immediately. They exchanged heavy lefts. Delaney missed a right lead and the champ punished him unmercifully with body punches. Just at the bell the challenger staggered the champ with a right to the head.

Delaney opened the sixth with a right that almost floored Paul. The champ clinched and scored to the body. Two driving uppercuts bounced off Berlenbach's jaw; the champ danced out of danger. The champ staggered Delaney with a left to the head. They were waltzing at the bell.

The champion carried the seventh, battering Delaney all over the ring, blood came from the challenger's nose.

The champion took the eighth with continued pounding to the body and the challenger appeared to weaken from the attack of the heavier foe.

Delaney did the slipping stunt in the ninth and went to one knee only to bob up a moment later. Berlenbach continued his punching to the head to carry this round by a good margin.

The tenth was a repetition of the ninth, the challenger appearing to tire before the onslaught of the champion. They were fighting hard at the bell.

With a bit of over-confidence the champion stepped in and took all the challenger had to offer in the eleventh. The challenger slipped past his guard and almost crumpled the champ with a right to the chin.

Delaney continued his attack in the twelfth and had the crowd yelling to him to follow his advantage. He was willing to allow the champ to hang on while he continued to punish Paul.

In masterful fashion the challenger took the thirteenth, playing havoc with the champ's chin and body. His terrific onslaught was stopped by the bell, but not before damage had been done to the fast firing champion.

In round fourteen Delaney boxed cleverly. He took a left lead on his glove then ripped his right to the jaw. A left uppercut almost floored the champion and he grabbed the ropes to save himself from going down. It was a thrilling rally and the spectators cheered the effort. Delaney slipped over a short left and the blood trickled from the champ's mouth. The challenger slipped over two well timed swings as the bell sounded.
